FINDING COLLABORATING ORGANIZATIONS For Participatory Community Media Projects

University faculty and artists may want to team up with an organization that has media making facilities, equipment, teaching space, distribution channels and presentation venues. Here are national organizations that support community media projects across the country.

To find a community television center (also known as public access TV or cable access channel) in your area consult the Alliance for Community Media at <http://www.alliancecm.org/>. Click on the tab "Mapping Community Media".

To find a community radio station in your area consult the National Federation of Community Broadcasters at <http://www.nfcb.org/index.jsp>. Click on the tab "Membership Directory".

To find a media arts center in your area consult the National Association of Media Arts and Culture at <http://www.namac.org/>. Click on the tab "Face of the Field" and scroll down to "Directory of Organizations".
